

Macalester International

Volume 1 The International Community and the Emerging World (Dis)Order

Article 5

Spring 1995

About the Authors

Follow this and additional works at: <http://digitalcommons.macalester.edu/macintl>

Recommended Citation

(1995) "About the Authors," Macalester International: Vol. 1, Article 5.

Available at: <http://digitalcommons.macalester.edu/macintl/vol1/iss1/5>

This Front Matter is brought to you for free and open access by the Institute for Global Citizenship at DigitalCommons@Macalester College. It has been accepted for inclusion in Macalester International by an authorized administrator of DigitalCommons@Macalester College. For more information, please contact scholarpub@macalester.edu.

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Sir Brian Urquhart is currently a scholar in residence in the International Affairs Program of the Ford Foundation. A former United Nations Under-Secretary General for Special Political Affairs, he is the recipient of both the Roosevelt Freedom Medal and the International Peace Academy Prize. His publications include Dag Hammarskjöld (1973), A Life in Peace and War (1987), and "For a U.N. Volunteer Military Force" in the New York Review of Books (June 10, 1993).

Dr. Johan Galtung, founder of the International Peace Research Institute in Oslo, is a pioneer in the field of Peace Studies. As such, he has authored six volumes of Essays in Peace Research as well as numerous books and articles, including The True Worlds: A Transnational Perspective (1980) and Buddhism: A Quest for Unity and Peace (1993). He has been honored with the Norwegian Humanist Prize and the Bajaj International Award for Promoting Gandhian Values.

Rado Bradistilov, a native of Sofia, Bulgaria, is a junior at Macalester College. He is majoring in Economics and International Studies with a minor in French. He is currently studying in Paris, France.

Arif Jamal, a 1994 World Press Institute fellow, is a senior reporter for the Muslim in Islamabad, Pakistan. He specializes in political reporting.

Dr. David L. Blaney, Assistant Professor of Political Science at Macalester College, specializes in International Relations Theory and Third World Politics with an emphasis in Africa. His recent publications include "Prelude to a Conversation of Cultures in International Society?: Todorov and Nandy on the Possibility of Dialogue" in Alternatives (1994) and "Realizing Sovereignty" in Review of International Studies (1995).

Dr. Ernest W. Lefever is a senior fellow and the founding president of the Ethics and Public Policy Center in Washington, D.C. His publications include Crisis in the Congo (1965) and The CIA and the American Ethic (1980).

Erin Beutel, a native of Wisconsin, is a senior at Macalester College with majors in Anthropology and Geology. She has studied in Costa Rica.

Ilka Piepgras is a reporter for the Berliner Zeitung in Berlin, Germany. She was a fellow for the World Press Institute in 1994.

Dr. Emily S. Rosenberg, DeWitt Wallace Professor of History at Macalester College, is a historian of United States foreign relations in the twentieth century and specializes in economic and cultural interactions. Her books include Spreading the American Dream: American Economic and Cultural Expansion, 1890–1945 (1982) and In Our Times: America Since World War II (1995).

Dr. Herb Addo is a senior research fellow in Political Economy of International Development and Organization at the Institute of International Relations, the University of the West Indies, St. Augustine, Trinidad and Tobago. He has written widely on many controversial issues in political economy. His publications include Transforming the World-Economy? Nine Critical Essays on the New International Economic Order (1984) and Development As Social Transformation: Reflections on the Global Problematique (1985).

H. Quyen Tran, a native of Vietnam who immigrated to the United States in 1975, is a senior in Anthropology and Latin American Studies at Macalester College. She has studied in Guatemala and Colombia.

Vivian Sequera, a 1994 World Press Institute fellow from Caracas, Venezuela, is one of her country's top journalists. She currently works as the Spanish-language correspondent in Venezuela for the Associated Press.

Dr. George T. McCandless, Jr., Associate Professor of Economics at Macalester College, maintains a focus on Latin America while specializing in Monetary Theory, International Trade, Econometrics, and Macroeconomics. Among his publications, which he has authored in English and Spanish, are Macroeconomic Theory (1991), Introduction to Dynamic Macroeconomic Theory: An Overlapping Generations Approach (1992), and Money and Banking (forthcoming).

Professor Yoshikazu Sakamoto is a senior research fellow at the Peace Research Institute at the International Christian University in Tokyo and a professor emeritus at the University of Tokyo. A leading world figure in the fields of International Politics and Peace and World Order Studies, he is the author of numerous books and articles, including The Emperor System As a Japan Problem (1989) and Japan in the Age of Globalization (1991).

Gretel S. Figueroa is a senior at Macalester College from Tennessee, majoring in Economics, Anthropology, and International Studies and minoring in French. She has studied in Madagascar and Guatemala, her parents' home country.

Serap Mahmatli is a general-assignment reporter for Aktüel in Istanbul, Turkey, and has also worked for specialized publications as an economics reporter. She was a 1994 fellow of the World Press Institute.

Dr. Yue-him Tam, Professor of History at Macalester College, specializes in modern Japanese intellectual history and Sino-Japanese cultural interactions. His major publications include Studies on Modern Sino-Japanese Cultural Relations (1986) and The Japanese Textbook Problem (forthcoming).